

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

“Inverse” Premieres at 39th Boston Sci-fi Film Festival

Filmmakers to attend Feb. 9th Sold-out Screening

Tickets sell out in 72 Hours, Additional Screening Added

LOS ANGELES (January 30, 2014) – Remote Films’ “Inverse” will receive its world premiere at the 39th Annual Boston Sci-fi Film Festival. The filmmakers, including director Matt Duggan and actor Josh Wingate (“Priest,” “World War Z”) are expected to attend the February 9th seven o’clock screening along with producers Stephanie Bell and Trevor Boelter.

“Inverse” is the feature length directorial debut for Matt Duggan, a prolific award-winning short film director, producer and writer. He says, “We are so excited and honored to premiere ‘Inverse’ in Boston. A lot of us have deep Boston roots so it feels like a homecoming. We hope we make Boston proud.” Duggan graduated from Boston College. The film’s director of photography Jonathan Barenboim is one of the industry’s most promising cinematographers. After earning his B.A. and B.F.A. at Tufts University and the School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, Barenboim was graduated with an M.F.A. from the acclaimed USC School of Cinematic Arts. “Inverse” was scored by GRAMMY® nominee and BAFTA®-winning composer Austin Wintory. In the last decade, Wintory has composed over 300 scores including “Captain Abu Raed,” which won the Audience Award World Cinema – Dramatic at the 2008 Sundance Film Festival and was Jordan’s official entry “Best Foreign Language Film” at the 81st Annual Academy Awards®.

Actors Josh Wingate and Chris Pauley grew up in the Boston area and started their careers on area stages before relocating to Los Angeles where both work steadily in film and TV.

Wingate plays “Max,” a young man who awakens unsure of exactly who he is – or in this case, was as it becomes evident that Max is supposed to be dead. Reality becomes relative as Max pieces his world back together, using clues from the physical world and vivid hallucinations. When an outlandish stranger named “Batter” (stage and screen veteran Morlan Higgins) shows up claiming Max is from a parallel universe, everything is at once clearer and utterly confounding. If what Batter says is true, and that’s a big “if,” it still doesn’t tell Max why all of this is happening to him. Someone else wants to know too.

8430 Santa Monica Blvd. Suite #203
West Hollywood, CA 90069 www.LexiconPublicRelations.com

The pressure intensifies when a nefarious government physicist (Pauley) discovers Max is alive and is determined to test Batter's theory.

The world premiere screening sold out in less than 72 hours. The festival quickly added a 9 PM screening to meet the demand. The back-to-back screenings will be at the Somerville Theatre in Somerville, MA.

"Inverse" also stars John Burish and Michelle Lawrence. Burish is expected to attend the Premiere on Feb. 9th.

InverseTheMovie.com

About Remote Films: Remote Films' mission is to champion new artists of original vision whose work explores the complexities of identity and human emotion, focusing on directors who write their own material.

Media Inquiries: Steve Rohr, Publicist
steve@lexiconpublicrelations.com

For Inverse: Stephanie Bell, Remote Films
inversethemovie@gmail.com

###